

Deep Visual Models for Endemic Species Monitoring: Addressing Class Imbalance in Galapagos Pinniped Identification

May 4, 2026

The main references used in this study are: [Wang and Shin, 2020, Nanditha and Manohar, 2020, Zeng, 2021, Patel et al., 2020].

References

- D. Nanditha and N. Manohar. Classification of animals using toy images. In Proceedings of the 4th International Conference on Intelligent Computing and Control Systems (ICICCS), pages 680–684, 2020. doi: 10.1109/ICICCS48265.2020.9121074.
- A. Patel, L. Cheung, N. Khatod, I. Matijosaitiene, A. Arteaga, and J. W. Gilkey. Revealing the unknown: Real-time recognition of galápagos snake species using deep learning. Animals, 10(5):806, 2020. doi: 10.3390/ani10050806.
- G. Wang and S.-Y. Shin. An improved deep learning method for classification of animal image patches based on small datasets. ASM Science Journal, 13:114–122, 2020. Special Issue 1.
- P. Zeng. Research on similar animal classification based on cnn algorithm. Journal of Physics: Conference Series, 2132(1):012001, 2021. doi: 10.1088/1742-6596/2132/1/012001.